

1.7.2 Convection

Transfer of heat by the circulation of gas or liquid is called convection. The hot parts of the liquid or gas will rise and the cool parts will fall creating a circulation of the liquid or gas and thus circulation of the heat.

Convection can also be forced. For example ducted heating in which air is heated and blown into a room.

Problem Set #5: Text Page 24 All Questions